

- A mass spectral molecular networking platform was established and applied to systematically profile the metabolome of traditional Chinese medicine (TCM).
- The potential relationship between medicinal property and metabolite composition of TCM was discovered and visualized in the molecular networks.
- Some specific flavonoids were identified as potentially cold property-related metabolites.
- This work can serve as a foundation of molecular networking-based analysis of TCM metabolome.